Using Prepositions in Informal Writing and Speaking—More Practice

In informal conversation and writing, we usually avoid beginning a question with a preposition. Instead, we put the preposition at the end of the sentence.

Examples: What are they looking at? (instead of the more awkward “At what are they looking?”)
What country does he come from? (instead of “From what country does he come?”)

Directions: Supply the appropriate preposition at the end of these sentences.

1. What clubs do you belong to?
2. What are you worried about?
3. What state was she born in?
4. What kind of music do you listen to?
5. What type of website are you looking for?
6. Which actress does she look like?
7. What are they planning to use the paint for?
8. Which hotel do you want to stay at?
9. Whom (who) was the article written by?
10. Which mall does she usually shop at?
11. Which college does he go to?
12. Whom (who) did they buy their property from?
13. Which book are you looking for?
14. What is the instructor talking about?
15. Which building do you have your class in?
16. Where is all that noise coming from?
17. What are you so happy about?
