

Welcome!

Thank you for your interest in teaching for the Tacoma Community College Continuing Education Department (CED). Our program staff is committed to responding to the interests and needs of our communities, including Gig Harbor, the Key Peninsula, and Tacoma. We offer classes, events, lectures, and workshops in a variety of categories including personal interest, lifelong learning, and job and career training - in both face-to-face and online formats.

We value our instructors. We realize that quality instruction by talented, creative, and invested teachers is what makes our programming stand out. We are here to help you share your interests and passions with community members who want to continue learning! If you have suggestions/comments/concerns about the department, please let us know – we like to be innovative and try new things so let us know what you are thinking.

- Who works on the proposal?
 - The instructor submits an initial rough draft to the CED Program Manager for consideration.
 - The Program manager and the instructor approve the final draft.
- What goes in the proposal?
 - Course curriculum
 - Recommended text
 - Instructors are encouraged to avoid requiring a text
 - Student Supply List
 - Instructors must provide a per-student list of materials each student will need for the course.
 - Supply list and recommended text and/or materials are not included in the price of the course and are the responsibility of the student.

No materials will be sold by instructors in the classroom

No promotion of outside organizations will be allowed in the classroom

- When is it due?
 - 90 days prior to the first day of the quarter
 - The scheduling of classes for each quarter begins 90 days prior to the start of each quarter.
 - When, you are asked to submit information for a coming quarter, please respond as quickly as you can, and include any updates regarding classes and teaching availability.
 - Once schedule information is in print, we are not able to accommodate requests for schedule changes and such requests will generally result in class cancellation.
- How/Where is it submitted
 - The initial proposal submission is made online via our Jot Form.
 - <https://form.jotform.us/50956585000151>

Instructors are responsible to set up the space and leave it exactly how they found it. Including, cleaning surfaces of tables (for art classes) and throwing out garbage that was left in the room. This also includes removing items from the podium.

Promotional Resources

The CED makes every effort to market all of its classes as widely as possible. To do this we utilize the Tacoma Community College website, the CED Facebook page, and online calendars. Once a quarter we email and mail schedules to residences in Tacoma and Gig Harbor along with press releases for special events. Instructors are welcome to link to our website and to encourage students to participate with us on social media platforms. We encourage instructors to market to your personal and professional networks.

- Instructor Biography Page
 - Help us to maintain your best possible online presence by reviewing and updating this information quarterly.
- Online Schedule
 - Alert us to any discrepancies you find within the CED portion of the TCC website such as class information or of any links that do not appear to be working properly.
- Printed Schedule
 - Hard copies of the quarterly schedule are distributed the month prior to the first day of the quarter
 - Additional copies may be available for you to distribute
- Other Marketing Material
 - Any distribution of online or printed material must have prior approval of the CED Program Manager and Tacoma Community College Marketing Department
